- In November 2018 The Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) issued guidance to restrict prescribing to specific brands of bread and mix products (Appendix 1), which will be retained in Part XV of the Drug Tariff.
- All other gluten free products have been removed from drug tariff and are no longer able to be prescribed. To clarify, please see below:

2. Amount of gluten free products

At present there is not a fixed number of units of gluten free bread/ mixes recommended nationally.

For guidance- a suggested appropriate amount is 8 to 10 units per person per month, regardless of age or gender.

Product	Number of units
1 x 400g or 2 x 200g of bread products (including any variety of bread/ rolls/ baguettes etc)	1
1 x 500g box mix product	2

Please note, patients can be prescribed any combination of bread/ mix products within the suggested 8 to 10 unit allowance per person per month.

Some patients may not require this amount- only prescribe the quantity the patient requires. If patients are requesting in excess of this suggested amount they should be reviewed to assess their requirement.

Please find patient information letter in Appendix 2.

Appendix 2: Patient Information Letter

Changes to the local NHS policy on prescribing gluten-free

Dear Patient,

We are writing to you to update you on the changes that will affect everyone in our area who receives gluten-free food on prescription. NHS West Essex Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) – the local NHS organisation which plans and pays for healthcare in this area, has made a decision that gluten-free foods will be restricted to bread and/ or mix products. This means all other gluten free items such as pasta, self-raising/ plain flour, pizza bases, cereals/ grains, crackers/ crispbreads, biscuits and cooking aids will no longer be available on prescription. This decision follows the outcome of a National Consultation that was conducted by The Department of Health & Social Care (DHSC) which concluded a limited range of bread and mix products are to be retained on prescription.

In the past, specialist gluten-free products were not widely available, and receiving them on prescription was often the only way to get them. However, awareness of coeliac disease, gluten-sensitivity and other similar conditions is on the increase and a varied range of gluten-free foods is now available from shops, supermarkets and online. Changes to the law mean food labelling has improved, making it easier to see which foods contain gluten.

There is also lots of good information available about eating a healthy and balanced diet which is naturally free from gluten. Coeliac UK has produced lots of information about how to eat a gluten-free diet which you may find useful. You can find this on the charity's website: www.coeliac.org.uk or by calling their helpline on 0333 332 2033 (local call rates apply).

If you are concerned about your health, it is very important that you make an appointment to talk to your GP or drop in to see a community pharmacist. If you would like to raise your concerns regarding the content of this letter, you can contact the CCG's Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS) Experience Team using the following details:
